All the Netherland Bach Society recordings are fantastic.

As the accuracy of our playback system has steadily increased over the years, the flaws in the human voice have started to bother us, particularly in the high-midrange/low-treble. At first we thought it was caused by CD PCM, but because it only happens on some CDs, we eventually concluded that it's due to improperly trained singers. So it was with some hesitation that we ordered a choral work, expecting to be put off by the grittiness. But there is none. The singers are pitch-perfect, clear, and sweet. A delightful recording.

Note - the other reviews were for a recording of this wonderful work. My review is of the music score published by Kalmus. Two of the pages are printed out of order. The printing itself is very muddy, which makes reading the individual notes difficult. In addition, the English translation is odd - definitely non-standard. I hope to find a better score. I am returning this one.

Expertly arranged Choral for SATB with SATB Soli by Johann Sebastian Bach from the Kalmus Edition series. This Easter or Spring Season Choral is from the Baroque era.
