G.K. Chesterton : Magic: A Fantastic Comedy before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Magic: A Fantastic Comedy:

G.K. Chesterton was born on May 29, 1874 in London. He was known for writing academic commentary, poetry and short stories. His interest in theology and conversion to Catholicism led him to write religious fiction. In 1908, he wrote the novel The Man Who Was Thursday. His most popular work was a detective series featuring a sleuth named Father Brown. He died in 1936.
